6. Management's Discussion and Analysis

Management's Discussion and Analysis (MDA) provides a narrative overview of the company's financial performance, financial condition, and other key information. The MDA is presented in two parts: a condensed financial review and a detailed financial review. The condensed financial review provides a high-level overview of the company's performance, while the detailed financial review provides a more in-depth analysis of the company's performance.

6.1 Condensed Financial Review

The condensed financial review provides a high-level overview of the company's performance. It includes key financial ratios and trends, such as revenue, expenses, and net income. The review highlights the company's strong performance in 2009, with revenue increasing by 15% and net income increasing by 20%. The review also discusses the company's financial condition, including its liquidity and capital resources. The company's financial condition is strong, with a solid balance sheet and a strong cash flow position. The review concludes by discussing the company's outlook for 2010, which is expected to be another strong year for the company.

6.2 Detailed Financial Review

The detailed financial review provides a more in-depth analysis of the company's performance. It includes a detailed review of each of the company's operating segments, including their revenue, expenses, and net income. The review also discusses the company's financial condition in more detail, including its liquidity and capital resources. The review concludes by discussing the company's outlook for 2010, which is expected to be another strong year for the company.
